How to Use the TRS-80 Astrology Program

How to Use the TRS-80 Astrology Program

In order to run an accurate horoscope, you must have the following information:

1. The month, day, and year of birth.
2. The exact time of birth.
3. Whether the birth was A.M. or P.M.
4. Place of birth (exact Longitude and Latitude).
5. Whether or not Daylight Savings Time (or Wartime) was in effect.

We are including the Longitudes and Latitudes for fifty of the major United States cities. You can approximate the Latitudes and Longitudes of other cities using any Atlas or large map. You can check with local authorities to determine when time changes took place during the year.

We would recommend purchasing two invaluable books if you are going to be doing a number of charts:

1. Longitudes and Latitudes in the United States, by Eugene Dernay
2. Time Changes in the USA, by Doris Chase Doane

Both of these books are modestly priced and will make life a great deal easier when preparing horoscopes. An alternative to the first book would be the AFA Astrological Atlas of the United States, which is more expensive, but more complete than the first book. All of these books are published by the American Federation of Astrologers, P.O. Box 22040, Tempe, Arizona 85282.

Time of Birth Corrections

For convenience, man simply freezes time across a time zone. It is necessary to know the longitude of the birthplace to determine the actual position of the Sun at birth. This procedure is called "True Local Time" or "Corrected Local Time". For most cities, the program provides automatic corrections for True Local Time. You simply enter the time of birth and the computer will determine the "Corrected Local Time".

Some states do not follow these time zones exactly. If a city is located more than $7\frac{1}{2}$ degrees west of its time zone, enter the birth time as one hour earlier. The program will then do the rest of the calculations. Time zones in the United States are located at 75, 90, 105, and 120 degrees. If the city is located West of the Time zone AND is further than $7\frac{1}{2}$ degrees from the time zone, subtract one hour from the birthtime.

If you have Dernay's Longitudes and Latitudes Book, you won't have any problem. If the L.M.T. is within ± 30 minutes, simply enter the birth time. For most cities, the correction is never more than ± 30 minutes away from the Center Longitude of the time zone. If the required correction is more than -30.00 minutes, subtract one hour from the birth time.

Loading Instructions

Level I

1. Place the tape in the cassette recorder and press "PLAY".
2. Type CLOAD and press ENTER.
3. When the program has loaded into the TRS-80, it will start automatically.
4. Press ENTER after every instruction you type.

Level II

1. Place the tape in the cassette recorder and press "PLAY".
2. When MEMORY SIZE? _ appears, press ENTER.
3. When READY > _ appears, type SYSTEM and press ENTER.
4. The screen will show *?_. Type ASTRO and press ENTER.
5. When *? _ appears again, type ☐ and press ENTER.
6. Press ENTER after every instruction you type.

(Level at
"4")

Note: Since Astrology is written in Machine Language, the asterisks will flash at a slower rate than normal. If you have a Level II Disk System, this program will not load into Disk Basic. You must use BASIC2 to load this program. Follow the instructions for Level II as shown.

After you load the Astrology Program, you will be asked to enter the name of the person whose chart is being prepared. This is an optional feature. It simply makes the chart more personalized. If you don't want to have the person's name appear on the screen, or the printed chart, simply press the ENTER key.

The date of birth is the first required information. If someone has a January 5, 1959 birthday, type 01/05/59 and press ENTER. When entering the date, each number between the slashes must contain 2 digits. January through September must be entered as 01 through 09. The same is true of the first 9 days of any month. Put a 0 in front of the number. The last two digits are for the year. The program is designed for birth dates between 1900 and 1999.

The next required question is the exact time of birth. Before you enter the birth time, check the location of the city to determine whether the time correction can be handled by the program (no more than ± 30 minutes). If the time correction is within these limits, enter the birth time, using a period (not a colon) to separate the hours from the minutes. For example: 5.25 would be a typical birth time. You don't need a leading 0 in front of a single digit hour.

The program will accept 5.20 or 05.20.

Now you can enter AM or PM in answer to the next question.

Note: Some people may not know the time of birth. If the birth time is unknown, press ENTER instead of typing in a time, and the program will produce a chart calculated for a 12 noon birth.

The Time Changes in the United States book will help you determine whether or not Daylight Savings Time or Wartime was in effect on that day. You will answer the question with a Y or an N.

Note: Wartime was Daylight Savings Time ALL YEAR long during World Wars I & II.

Place of birth is an optional question that need not be answered. It can be helpful if the chart is shown to a professional astrologer, since the astrologer can check your chart for accuracy.

The program will ask for the longitude and the latitude of the birth place. The answer must be in degrees and minutes of a degree. For example, if you were born halfway between longitude 71.00 and 72.00, you would enter 72.30 as the longitude. One degree of longitude equals 60 minutes. $\frac{3}{4}$ of a degree of longitude equals 45 minutes. $\frac{1}{4}$ of a degree of longitude equals 15 minutes.

The program assumes longitude to be West and latitude to be North. For example, assume you were born in Tucson, Arizona. The longitude is shown as 110W59. The program assumes West, so you would simply enter 110.59. The latitude is listed as 32N14 and since the program assumes North, you would enter 32.14.

If you were born South of the Equator, enter a minus number for latitude. A person born in Jakarta, the capital city of Indonesia, was born at 110E22 longitude and 7S48 latitude. Eastern longitudes are entered as negative numbers, so you would type -110.22 as the longitude.

Southern latitudes are also negative entries, and you would type -7.48 as the latitude. North latitudes and West longitudes are plus numbers, while South latitudes and East longitudes are minus numbers.

The last question is whether you want a chart printed or simply displayed on the screen. If you have an 80 column printer, type a Y and press ENTER. The typical chart is almost 3 feet long on most printers. It will take about 3 or 4 minutes to produce the chart.

If you do not have a printer (or you just want to see one part of a chart), type N. The horoscope will appear on the screen, one section at a time. It will stop at each full screen and wait while you copy down the information. You can then press any key to proceed to the next screenful of information.

At the end of the chart, simply press any key to go back to the start of the program and prepare a new chart.

Reading the Horoscope

The first section of the horoscope is designed to be used as a reference for astrologers. It shows the corrections used for local and Greenwich Mean Time as well as the longitude and latitude, and whether Daylight Savings Time was in effect. If you do many charts, include the name of the person and the birthplace. These two facts are not necessary to the program, and, if you choose, you may use these two lines for any type of information you wish.

The first calculated information is the Ascendant (or Rising Sign). If you did not enter a birth time, the Ascendant cannot be determined, and this line will not appear.

The planets, starting with the Sun, will be listed in order. On some charts you may notice the word, RETROGRADE following a particular planet. This is a phenomenon that causes the planet to appear to move backward for a period of time. The effect of a retrograde motion is difficulty in using the planet's energy in a straight-forward manner. The area the planet rules becomes more subconscious, and difficult to control.

After the planets are listed, the program prints the Natal Aspects. This is simply the angle formed between the planets which shows whether the planetary forces are working smoothly and harmoniously, or creating tensions and conflicts. The numbers at the very end of each line indicate how far the angle is from exact alignment. If the number is minus, it means the angle is approaching the exact condition ("Applying"). A positive number means the angle has formed and is now moving apart ("Separating"). The poster points out which angles are harmonious or difficult.

The Elements and Modes of a Sign indicate any predominance in an area of the chart. A quick glance will indicate if the person is enthusiastic, stable, or flexible in relation to energy, practicality, expression, or emotion.

The planets in the houses indicate how the planets affect the various areas in your life. This section deals with how you apply your energies on a day-to-day basis. The poster provides ready capsule summaries of these effects.

Signs on the cusps of the houses show the influences of the signs on your life and attitudes toward specific areas of your life. Again, the poster provides a brief summary.

If you have a printer, the program will print out a Natal Chart, showing all the planets in the Houses in the form of a wheel. The cusp of each House will be marked, and all the planets will be placed in the corresponding Houses. The program cannot print the wheel on the screen due to the size requirements of the wheel. All the information necessary to construct the wheel is printed on the screen, if you do not have a printer available. The program is designed for use with the Line Printer I, II, III, or the TRS-80 Quick Printer (26-1153).

The average chart is about 32" long. The program is designed for use with roll paper, and will not recognize end of page locations. If the birthtime is not provided, the program will return to the beginning after printing elements and modes.

Understanding the Influence of the Planets

The Sun

The Sun sign indicates the life forces, and to a degree, provides the basic character traits. If the other planets strengthen the Sun sign, a person might appear very typical of his Sun sign — the impulsive Aries, the talkative Gemini, the homeloving Taurus, the dramatic Leo, etc.

If the planets are strongly grouped in another sign, the person may take on the characteristics of the other sign. The Sun sign may be so overpowered, the person exhibits none of the traits connected with the Sun sign. This is why some people are not a typical Taurus, Leo, Capricorn, etc. Just knowing your Sun sign is not enough.

The constant interplay between all the planets is the key to correct interpretation. The placement of all the planets determines the person — some placements weaken some planets, others strengthen their effect. Even if the planet is well-placed, a planet with an aspect to Mars can strongly affect a well-placed planet, increasing or decreasing the planet's effect. This is why you should never read a simple interpretation of any planet in a particular sign. You must determine the influence of aspects to planets on any specific planet. The whole chart must be blended and modified, based on the position of all the planets, and their relationship to each other.

The Ascendent (Rising Sign)

The Ascendent, or Rising Sign, is the sign that was on the Eastern horizon at the exact moment of birth. Since the Earth rotates every 24 hours, the sign on the horizon changes every 2 hours. The Ascendent determines the placement of the Houses (explained later). It is most important to know the exact time of birth in order to determine the Ascendent and the House placement. The Ascendent determines physical appearance, self-image, and how you project yourself to others. Often times, the Ascendent is the most important factor in a chart.

The Moon

The Moon shows emotional needs and the form the personality will assume. It governs the emotions, and psychological needs. It represents the area of mental security in life. It brings out the protective nature. Moon and Venus in a man's chart relates to women.

Mercury

Mercury rules the mind and the intellect. It points to the way a person thinks, and the method of expression. Mercury is often an excellent indicator of the type of work that is most likely to achieve success for the individual.

Venus

Venus determines the manner in which one looks at love. It also indicates the attitude (and feelings) toward beauty and romance. It's an excellent indicator of the type of art and furniture to be found in the home.

Mars

Mars determines how energies will be applied. It also determines the sexual nature. A dynamic, energetic person will have a well-placed Mars, and the Sun sign will also be in a good relationship with Mars. Sun and Mars in a woman's chart relates to men.

Jupiter

Jupiter is the planet of benefits, increase, and bounty. It increases the strength and effect of a planet if it is in good relationship to the planet. The exceptions would be relationships with the planets Saturn, Neptune, and occasionally Uranus.

Saturn

Saturn points to troubles in life. Saturn in relationship to the other planets indicates the nature of trials and adversity. The Saturn and Sun relationships show troubles with self-image and basic nature. Saturn and Gemini relationships show troubled areas in the thought processes. Saturn and Venus indicates problems with love and romance.

Uranus

Uranus indicates a sudden change in life. It can also mean something unique, or it can mean a degree of eccentricity. Saturn and Uranus in close relationship are usually strong indicators of sudden trouble. As you learn to interpret the chart, you will notice the repeated pattern of this Saturn and Uranus relationship, to the point where you can pinpoint, to the month, a serious problem in a chart. Tread lightly in this area. It can often show a part of life that he may never want revealed or known.

Neptune

Neptune is associated with lies, deception, and self-delusion. Many astrologers hold that Neptune strongly affects psychic abilities and clairvoyance. Often, it will point to areas where lies occurred, or an area of self-deception.

Pluto

Pluto represents transformation and change in attitudes or surroundings. Often, the change is of a violent, or revolutionary nature.

The planets, together with the Rising Sign, determine an individual's basic nature and the attitude brought to every event in his life. The relationship between the planets (Aspects), and the signs these planets are in, as well as the Houses will modify all the characteristics of a person's nature and attitude — strengthening some and weakening others. Every planet, and its relationship to every other planet, must be considered and weighed before you can attempt even a simple interpretation.

Natal Aspects

The aspects are the angles formed between the planets at the time of birth. Some planets are influenced by other planets. Depending on the planets, and the angles formed, forces are created which create harmonious or difficult interaction. The number at the end of each aspect line shows how far away the planets are from forming a perfect angle. A negative number means the angle has not yet formed, and the energy of the angle is increasing (or "applying"). A positive number means the angle has formed and is now moving away and diminishing (or "separating"). An applying angle has more force than a separating angle. 0.00 would mean the angle has reached its peak effect. The major aspects are:

Conjunctions

A conjunction occurs when two planets are close together (within 9 degrees). If the planets are similar in nature, a strengthening effect will result. If the planets are not similar, the two energies will work against each other. For example, Saturn does not work well with any planet, and conjunctions with Saturn create difficulties that show up in the area of the planet that is conjunct with Saturn. Most Jupiter conjunctions are beneficial. A conjunction is one of the most powerful angles in astrology. The poster shows which conjunctions are beneficial.

Oppositions

When two planets are 180 degrees apart, they are in opposition. They tend to pull against each other, canceling out effects. Very few oppositions would be considered good. When two planets are in opposition, there might be a planet that is in aspect to both of the opposing planets. This will provide an outlet for the energy of the opposing planets. It would appear as a funneling of the energies through this third planet. The opposition is also a powerful angle.

Trines

This angle is formed by two planets 120 degrees apart. It causes a smooth flow of energy between the two planets that are trined. Usually, trines indicate effortless energies in the area of the planet's influence. As with most things in life, too much of a good thing can be bad. If a person has mostly trines and other good aspects, the personality tends to be bland and lifeless. Everyone needs a little tension and difficulty to stay on their toes. Trines are generally good (in moderation), and are very powerful.

Squares

The 90 degree angle formed by the square create tensions and vector the energy into a new angle halfway between the two planets. Most people consider squares and oppositions as bad aspects. They do however, create dynamics that cause the person to have a forceful personality, and generally help to make life interesting. The square is slightly less forceful than the opposition. While a square is regarded by the possessor as bad, it may be beneficial in the same way that people grow out of adversity.

Sextile

The sextile is a 60 degree angle formed between two planets and is similar in effect to the trine. It indicates a smooth harmonious relationship between the involved planets. It is weaker than a trine and bears the same relation to a trine as a square relates to an opposition. If two planets are in opposition to each other, and aspected to a third planet, the energies of the opposing planets will be expressed through this third planet and the negative effects will tend to be smoothed out.

Semi-Sextile

This is a 30 degree angle that is similar (but weaker) to the sextile and trine. As you become familiar with the aspects, you will begin to observe the affect that they have on a person's life. The aspects indicate how the planets distribute their energy. If there are too many good aspects (trines, sextiles, and some conjunctions), these aspects can easily combine to create a lifeless selfish, lackluster person that does not have a distinctive or individual personality. All bad aspects can produce someone with more than their fair share of troubles and adversities.

Signs of the Zodiac

The signs of the Zodiac are arranged in a circle, each sign occupying exactly 30 degrees. The 12 signs add up to 360 degrees — the completed Zodiac. Do not confuse the signs of the Zodiac with the Houses. The signs are associated with attitudes and personal characteristics, while the Houses are associated with events in a person's life. The confusion occurs because the Houses appear to be 30 degrees wide and have the same circular look as the signs of the Zodiac. The Houses actually vary in size but are usually shown equal.

The planets and signs of the Zodiac are placed in Houses of the Zodiac. As you move North from the Equator, the Houses assume different proportions — some Houses increasing to as much as 40 or 50 degrees across, while other Houses decrease in size. The signs of the Zodiac can be said to be natural rulers of various Houses, and the sign at the start of each House (on the Cusp) will determine the attitudes and traits a person brings to each event in his life.

Each sign is ruled by a planet. A planet, in the sign it rules, has its strongest influence, while a planet in a sign opposite its natural home will take on negative characteristics and meaning.

Each planet Rules a sign (its natural home), and has a Detrimental sign (opposite its natural home). A planet has a sign of Exaltation (similar to its natural home), and a sign of Fall (opposite the sign of Exaltation and similar to the sign of Detriment). A planet in its natural sign, or in Exaltation, will increase the nature of its characteristics. A planet in a sign of Detriment, or Fall, weaken the strength (or bring out the negative character) of the planet.

Each sign has 3 qualities. The first is the basic nature of the sign and the influence on attitudes and basic characteristic traits. Each sign also has a mode, which may be Cardinal (active or energetic), Fixed (stable and persevering), or Mutable (flexible and adaptable). Each sign is also related to an element — Fire (enthusiasm), Earth (practical), Air (thinking), and Water (emotions).

Taken together, the elements and modes provide a basic description of the sign.

Aries

Aries is a Cardinal Fire sign. Aries is ruled by the planet Mars. It is the sign of active and enthusiastic energies. It is the sign of the individual — daring, impulsive, sometimes reckless, but always right now and immediate. Think of Aries as "I am". Many times the enthusiasm and energy of Aries create serious problems. The sign of Aries is said to be the ruler of the head.

Taurus

Taurus is a Fixed Earth sign. Taurus is ruled by Venus. It is the sign of stability and roots. It is the sign of perseverance and practicality. The description suggests home, plants, love, and determination. It is a sign of possessions and steadfastness of purpose. Think of Taurus as "I have". Taurus is said to rule the kidneys, neck and throat. Taurus is also a sign of stubbornness.

Gemini

Gemini is a Mutable Air sign, ruled by Mercury. It is the sign of flexible, adaptable thinking. It's a sign concerned with communication and expression. The sign represents thoughts, speech, writing, and all methods of expressing ideas. Gemini has a key phrase of "I think". Gemini rules the arms, lungs, and vocal cords. The versatility of Gemini can sometimes pose a problem because of tendency to be bored quickly. Projects are left unfinished in an effort to explore all possible avenues.

Cancer

Cancer is a Cardinal Water sign. Cancer is ruled by the Moon. It is the sign of active emotions. It is the sign of recognition between the individual and the group. It is a sign of protection and secrecy, and often insecurity. Cancer is associated with extreme sensitivity, impressions, and memory. Cancer rules the breasts. Think of Cancer as "I feel". Many times, the insecurity results in secrecy (for self-preservation), and a tendency to over-sentimentalize.

Leo

Leo is a Fixed Fire sign. Leo is ruled by the Sun. It is the sign of fixed energies, pride, courage, and nobility. Leo is also associated with children and self-indulgence. Leo rules the heart and the blood. Think of Leo as "I will". The sign of Leo can be a sign of benevolence, self-worth, and leadership. Other factors can easily change the meaning of the sign to vanity and ego.

Virgo

Virgo is a Mutable Earth sign. Virgo is ruled by Mercury. It is the sign concerned with health, service, and attention to detail. Virgo's preoccupations are with detail, precision, analysis, and categorization. Too much Virgo can make an individual overly critical, fussy, and lead to excessive worry. Some astrologers say, "Virgo is the sign of the ulcer". Virgo rules the intestines and the digestive tract. The love of detailed work can often give way to puritanical snobbery. Virgo says, "I analyze".

Libra

Libra is a Cardinal Air sign. Libra is ruled by Venus. It is the sign concerned with personal activity and sociability. If the first 6 signs of the Zodiac are thought of in terms of internal development, then Libra is the first sign of the outward development and harmony with others. There are two phrases which sum up the function of Libra. First of all, think of Libra as "I balance". Think of it also as the balance against Aries, its opposite sign. Aries is "I am" — Libra is "We are". Libra seeks balance and harmony above all, which makes for excellent statesmen and negotiators. The Libra desire to balance can give way to indecision and irritating fence straddling, causing an inability to make even a simple decision. Libra rules the stomach and navel, although the kidneys are said to be often the center of Libra illnesses. Libra is elegant, refined, attractive, yet can be cool, detached, and impersonal.

Scorpio

Scorpio is a Fixed Water sign. Scorpio is ruled by Pluto although many astrologers hold that Scorpio is also ruled by Mars. It is a sign of stable emotions, in other words, control. The description by Mode and Element is Fixed Water, which is another term for ice. Outwardly, the emotions are coolly controlled while beneath the surface of the ice, the waters of emotion rush on headlong. Beneath the controlled exterior, lie violent passions which will only surface in private. Think of Scorpio as "I desire", on an individual level. On a collective level, it is not the Taurus "I have" response, but a collective, "We have" that demonstrates Scorpio's concern for society's resources. The sign of Scorpio creates a powerful, physical magnetism. Scorpio rules the reproductive organs. Scorpio is intense, sensitive, objective, however, other factors can easily change the qualities to a lust for power, possession, and self-seeking success, whatever the cost to others.

Sagittarius

Sagittarius is a Mutable Fire sign. Sagittarius is ruled by Jupiter. It can be considered as adaptable enthusiasm, the ever searching mind. Sagittarius represents both the idealized teacher and the eternal student — always on a quest for yet more knowledge. As Gemini says "I think" on an individual level, so Sagittarius says "I seek" on a broad philosophical level. Sagittarius rules the thighs and the upper portion of the leg. While Sagittarius imparts truth, knowledge, and generosity, it can produce opinionation, tactlessness, and a tendency to be dogmatic.

Capricorn

Capricorn is a Cardinal Earth sign ruled by Saturn. The energies are made stable and take the form of organization and structure. Capricorn represents the cautious climber on the ladder of organization. Capricorn symbolizes the builder, climbing the structure he builds. Capricorn imparts an awareness of social contribution. The sign brings ambition and hard working realistic attitudes to any function tackled. Think of Capricorn as "I build". Capricorn rules the knee and the shin. A planet poorly placed in Capricorn can impose self-restrictions, limitations, cause feelings of depression and difficulty in breaking habits.

Aquarius

Aquarius is a Fixed Air sign ruled by Uranus. Thoughts become stable as Aquarius views the future of social growth with a sense of duty to improve the quality of life. In a sense, Aquarius is revolutionary, creating a need for sudden change (Uranus) even if that change is unorthodox and unconventional. Aquarius is a sign of invention. Aquarius rules the circulatory system. Think of Aquarius as "I know". Aquarius can be a powerful force for the unusual, inventive, and concern, or, it can lead to eccentricity, destruction, and isolation.

Pisces

The last sign of the Zodiac is Pisces, a Mutable Water sign. This sign of adaptable emotions is ruled by Neptune, the planet of dreams and illusions. This last sign of the Zodiac represents the hopes and dreams of society. Pisces brings the qualities of faith to the Zodiac and produced an ethereal, sympathetic, self-sacrificing force that can be either a source of inspiration, or dissolves into a dream world state of confused self-indulgence. Think of Pisces as "I believe". Pisces rules the feet. The force of Pisces must be understood because of the tremendous potential for self-undoing, self-deception, and destructive empathy. It can be a sign of weakness, addiction, and sensuality, or it can lift the spirit to the highest levels of faith and understanding.

Placing the Planets in the Signs

It is at this point that the beginning astrologer, and even the experienced astrologer, must move slowly and cautiously before making a judgement. Everything learned so far must be carefully weighed and balanced. Don't try to interpret anything until this placement is completed and studied.

Even though some Sun sign descriptions may seem to fit the person (He's a typical Leo, etc.), there are many factors to be considered before a full interpretation can be made. Don't fall into this enticing trap. It may work for some people, but eventually you will find your interpretations becoming more generalized, inaccurate, and little better than a good guess.

Study the planets. Study the signs. Study the planets in the signs. Try to capture the feeling that each planet and sign projects. Once you become aware of the overall unity of the planets working in the signs, a detailed, accurate interpretation will become obvious.

Blending the Sun, Ascendent and Moon in the Signs

The Sun

The Sun in Leo and Aries will operate to the maximum benefit, while the Sun in Aquarius and Libra may bring out the negative qualities of those signs if other planetary positions are strongly affecting Aquarius and Libra as well.

The Sun in the other 8 signs will generally follow the characteristics of the sign, assuming there is some reinforcement from the other planets and no major planetary forces working against the Sun sign combination.

Think of the Sun in a sign as the type of car the person drives. Sometimes it can be a good description of the driver, but consider the following examples:

You are at a large shopping mall and your car breaks down. A stranger (we will assume the stranger is friendly) offers to drive you home, but the stranger must finish shopping first, and hands you the keys to the car, then walks off. He tells you it's a sports car.

Can you walk outside the mall and go directly to the car just by knowing the type of car? It could be a convertible, two-door, etc., it could be blue, red, two-toned, and it could be new or old. The type of car is similar to a person's Sun sign.

The Sun sign is the type person. Sun in Aries tells you it is a sports car, and that's all. It doesn't tell you what kind of accessories, the mileage, of the rough roads traveled, or the dents received in a lifetime. It just tells you the type of the car. Maybe we can tell more about the car from a description of the driver.

The Ascendent

If the Sun sign can be considered the make of car, then the Ascendent can be considered as a general description of the driver. Remember earlier, it was noted the Ascendent is how you are seen and how you see yourself. It is the physical appearance, and how you want to be seen by others. An Aries Ascendent with an Aries Sun will almost guarantee an impulsive driver behind the wheel of a very fast sports car. Wherever that car goes, it will be driven fast (and occasionally recklessly).

The Aries Ascendent describes the driver as energetic, enthusiastic, and reckless at times. Take this Aries Ascendent person and put him together with a Taurus Sun practical, stable car. What will happen? He'll drive that car at top speed, recklessly. Remember this concept:

THE SUN SIGN DESCRIBES THE TYPE OF CAR —
THE ASCENDENT DESCRIBES THE DRIVER

Blending the Sun, Ascendent and Moon in the Signs (continued)

Let's continue with another example. Look at a Taurus Ascendent. A good description of a Taurus Ascendent might be stable, slow and steady. Put him in a Taurus Sun car and you have a slow and cautious driver in a slow, practical car. Let's put this driver into a Aries Sun sports car. How will this Taurus Ascendent work with this Aries Sun? He will drive this high-powered vehicle the same way — slow and steady. That's the result of an Aries Sun and a Taurus Ascendent. The person is no longer "a typical Aries".

Using the Sun sign descriptions from the previous pages, see if you can fit different makes of automobiles to the various Sun signs. Remember, you want to try for a general description of the type, and not the exact model or color. In some cases, you may have to describe a Sun sign in a little more detail. Here's a start:

Sun in Aries — any high-powered sports car that suggests impulsiveness and energy.

Sun in Taurus — any car that suggests the qualities of Taurus (slow and steady).

Sun in Leo — Cadillac, Mercedes, Rolls Royce (cars with pride and drama).

Sun in Pisces — any car that was bought because you felt sorry for it.

Make a list in your mind of all the Sun sign cars, and think of what would happen by putting different Ascendent drivers in each car.

Let's take this concept another way: let's take the Sun sign and imagine it to be the house in which the person lives. The Ascendent describes the appearance of the person living in the house, and how the person appears to others. A Taurus house would have lots of plants, while a Leo house might be very dramatic. That's the Sun sign — it doesn't necessarily describe the occupant, just a brief description of the type of house.

The Ascendent describes the occupant. A Taurus Ascendent with a Leo Sun is like a person who loves plants, living in a dramatic house. It's a slower, stable person living in a dramatic, showplace of a house. His love for plants may overwhelm the dramatic qualities of the house. The Leo Sun house is hidden behind the Taurus Ascendent plants.

A Virgo Ascendent in the same Leo house (Sun sign) will present a different picture. There will be fewer plants, and everything in the house will be meticulously organized, with each thing in its assigned place. If the Virgo Ascendent occupant moves out and a Capricorn Ascendent moves in, the house will be restructured and reorganized. The house is still the same house, but the different occupant changes the feeling.

The Leo Sun still indicates the same dramatic house. The Ascendent shows how the person adds his unique personality to impart individuality to the house. It is this basic combination of Sun and Ascendent that sets one Leo apart from other Leos, and makes two people with the same Sun sign as different as day and night. THE SUN SIGN DESCRIBES THE TYPE — THE ASCENDENT DESCRIBES THE PERSON.

Regardless of the analogy, the basic concept is the same. The Sun sign can reveal certain characteristic traits, but the Ascendent will describe how the person sees himself and how he projects to others. The other planets determine how the person's energies will be applied, how they express their thoughts and their emotional needs.

Going back to our first example, you can say that the other planets fill in the rest of the details about the car and the driver. The other planets tell you the model, color, engine size, accessories, and the condition of the car and driver. Or, if you prefer, the rest of the planets describe the contents of the home which tells you about the occupant.

The Moon

The Moon in the sign points to a basic emotional need. The Moon in Cancer or Taurus indicates a need for home and family, or roots and stability. The Moon in Capricorn suggests a need for structure and organization which clashes with the Moon's basic emotional nature. The Moon in Scorpio would pit the emotions of the Moon against Scorpio's need for emotional control.

The other eight signs would show the area of strongest emotional need. For example: the Moon in Gemini would point to an emotional need for communication and exchange of ideas.

Try blending the feeling for the Moon's contribution in with the Sun sign and Ascendent. Try a Leo Sun with an Aries Ascendent, and a Moon in Taurus. This might create a dramatic person (Leo) who appears very energetic and individual (Aries), with a strong emotional need (Moon) for roots and tradition (Taurus).

If you can see how this blending is starting to take shape, congratulations — you're on your way to becoming a first-rate astrologer.

You may have noticed that we didn't mention some of the other Aries qualities such as daring, impulsive, and reckless. Why? Because the emotional need (Moon) for stability and roots is so strongly placed in Taurus, that it will temper the Aries Ascendent.

Later on, we might find other planets in a person's chart so strongly placed, that they overcome the Moon's energy, and we must revert to the original Aries description, including recklessness, impulsive, etc.

When you can successfully blend, integrate, and sythesize all of the planets and signs, you will get an accurate picture of the person.

The Houses

The Houses contain a rich treasure trove of meaning and symbolism on many levels. They point to the various periods in a person's life as well as a specific area of the present life. The planets and signs in relation to the Houses bring emotions and attitudes to the different Houses.

The First House deals with self-image and individual awareness. Think of a child's first awareness of its own existence. A strong sense of self. The sign on the cusp of the House describes how you see yourself, and are seen by others. Any planets located within the First House will exert influences on the meaning.

The Second House is associated with personal resources. A sense of possession and security is developed. Later in life, the Second House shows how you use your resources — both material and spiritual. It shows stability, roots and perseverance.

The Third House deals with personal communication and ideas. Here the child begins to express concepts and communicate with others. It is intensely personal communication voicing the person's own concepts and perceptions. This House deals with personal expression and ideas. It can also indicate the affairs of brothers and sisters as well as travel for short distances.

The Fourth House concerns itself with the early home life (i.e. the parents' home), and the most influential parent. This is usually, but not always, the parent of the opposite sex — the mother in a man's chart, the father in a woman's chart. The sign on the cusp of the Fourth House (and the planets within) describe the parent and early environment.

The Fifth House is the child's first awareness of leisure time, and this area remains through the adult's life. It is the House of personal activities, such as love and romance, hobbies, recreation, children — anything personal and not required. Things done for pleasure.

The Sixth House is one of personal service and personal responsibility. It also includes health and concern for health. After the child has gone through the first five stages (self-awareness, personal resources, expression, family, and leisure), a sense of responsibility is acquired. What can the child do within the house to help? A need to feel responsible for self-satisfaction.

The first six Houses are concerned with self-filling personal needs and desires. They are totally oriented toward the development of the individual. These are the inward Houses. They deal with the total self. The second six Houses provide the balance of the individual's role in society. The awakening of recognition that others exist, that a person is dependent on other people for fulfillment. This is the role of the last six Houses.

The Seventh House is the first total awareness of others, and your relationship with others. A recognition that you are not alone in the world. It balances the first House of self-awareness. It shows your marriage partner, and everyone who is close to you in the way of partnerships.

The Eighth House balances the Second House. It is the House of other people's resources. Helping others develop their resources. It is the House of passion and sexual drive with others. It is the House of Death and Rebirth. If the Fifth House is your personal views on love, then the Eighth House lets you express that love to others — through sex, and concern for growth.

The Ninth House is the House of the enlightened mind. Philosophy, religion, higher learning, publishing, and long distance travel are all part of Ninth House affairs. The desire to learn, and the desire to teach balance the Third House of the personal mind and ideas.

The Tenth House is the House of professions. It is also the House of the other parent. This House determines how well you will succeed in your efforts in a career. Many times, this House will indicate your present circumstances. It will usually point to the heights of possible achievement.

The Eleventh House is the House of friends, dreams, and goals. Most often, it will tell the way you regard your friends, and how your friends regard you. The Eleventh House can also show how you plan to achieve your goals and realize your ambitions.

The Twelfth House is the House of solitude and endings. Recently, the Twelfth House has come to be associated with large corporations, government, and large organizations in general. It is the traditional House of solitude and anything which is hidden. Serious illness is part of the Twelfth House influence.

Miscellaneous Notes

The South Node is always directly opposite the North Node. Every sign will not always appear on the cusp of every house. When this happens, it means that two of the signs are "Intercepted", or located totally within two of the houses. An intercepted sign (and any planets in that sign) will have a great deal of difficulty in operating with their full force.

If anyone should ever ask you, the program is a Geocentric, Tropical Natal Astrology program, using the Placidian House System. It corrects for Time shifts, corrects to Greenwich time, provides Sidereal corrections, and adjusts for True Lunar Nodes, and Moon location, as well as showing Retrograde Planetary motion. All calculations are accurate to within one degree for any date between January 1, 1900 and December 31, 1999.

If you do not enter a birth time, the program will base all calculations on a Noon birth time. If you wish house information for an unknown birth time, simply enter 12.00 as the time, and PM as a noon birth.

For births prior to 1900, simply subtract 1900 from the year. For example: You wish to do a chart for someone born in 1875, subtract 1900 from 1875. The answer is -25. Enter the year as -25. The moon calculations will probably not appear, and the accuracy will deteriorate as you move further from the recommended range.

Recorded birthtimes are not always accurate. If the house information does not seem to apply, try changing the time by one hour either way to compensate for a possible time zone error. A few minutes can sometimes make a big difference if the planets are near house cusps.

Secondary Progressions

There is an advanced Astrology technique for updating a Natal Chart to reveal current conditions for the present year. It is based on advancing the Natal Chart one day for each year. Thus, if you were born on January 1, 1960, you would prepare a chart on your 20th birthday as if you were born January 21, 1960. A one day advance of the Natal Chart equals a one year advance in time. If you are 20 years old, add 20 days to your date of birth.

It becomes a little tricky for people in the 30 to 50 year age group to figure the additional months and days involved, however the TRS-80 can make secondary progressions very easy. When you enter the day of birth, simply add your age to the birthdate. Leave the month and year alone. For example: assume a birthdate of May 20, 1937. The person is now 43 years old. Simply enter the birthdate as 05/63/37. The program will produce a progressed chart for July 2, 1937 (which would be the correct progression for the age — May 20, 1937 + 43 days = July 2, 1937). The interpretations would be similar to a natal chart, but would indicate the influences that are in effect at present. It will print the date as May 63, 1937, but the chart will be identical to a chart for July 2, 1937.
